From the time I was 14years-old, I dreamed of driving a motorcycle. In junior and senior high, my mother would not let me buy one. In college, I had no money. After college, I got married, moved to Japan, and still had no extra money. After my sons were born, I was afraid of the risk. Finally, when I became 60 years-old and my kids were adults, my wife agreed to let me buy a motorcycle.

Starting in next months's I See, I will share some things I have learned from riding. I hope you will learn something from my experiences.
