サブタイトル	Seminar in Intercultural Communication
授業内容 ・ ねらい	This seminar is a study of practical intercultural communication, with a special emphasis on understanding home and family life differences found in Japan and the USA. We will study the meaning of communication and culture, and our perception of and participation in the communication of our own and another culture. Themes that we will be examining include: communication and culture, origins and current expressions of attitudes and approaches to home and family life in the two cultures, culturally determined sets of behavior, communication patterns of Japan and of the USA, the cycle of culture shock and adjustment, and various tips for safe and enjoyable international travel.
